Bringing together three fantastic businesses under one roof, to respond to the impacts of regulatory and technological change will deliver more efficient and co-ordinated payments solutions for Australian consumers and businesses," said Ms Kraus.

"AP+ already has great people, brands and infrastructure in place. My priority will be to harness that talent and passion to create a more competitive and co-ordinated Australian payments organisation."

"Lynn is also an expert in stakeholder management and business transformation, and I know one of her first priorities will be to continue the seamless integration of eftpos, BPAY and NPPA under AP+, when the official completion date is reached in mid-February."

AP+ undertook an extensive recruitment process for the CEO role and Ms Kraus's appointment has been endorsed by the shareholder representatives on the AP+ Board.

"On behalf of AP+ I also want to thank Stephen Benton, Adrian Lovney and John Banfield for leading us all through the ACCC process and now the integration process. BPAY, eftpos and NPPA wouldn't be the trusted brands they are today without their leadership and hard work," said Ms Brenner.

Adrian Lovney will be taking on the role of interim CEO until Lynn's start date and the permanent Chief Operating Officer (COO) position beyond that.

"Adrian has been working in the industry for many years and his passion about the future of payments in Australia will be an asset to AP+," said Brenner.

AP+ also recently named Greg Cooper, Naomi Simson and John Murphy as Independent Directors to the Board. The appointment of the Independent Directors completes the selection of the AP+ Board alongside the shareholder representatives¹. The Board will be formally appointed in early 2022.
